Newleyweds Are Injured

Callithumpian Celebration Ends Disastrously at the County Seat

The callithumpian method of celebrating weddings resulted rather seriously to four persons in Washington Thursday evening. Mr. and Mrs. Lee Ullom, a bride and groom of Thursday, and Mr. and Mrs. Donald Landers, recently married were riding in an old two wheeled cart, where they had been placed by their friends, when it upset.

Mrs. Ullom received a bad gash on her head. Her husband was badly bruised. Mrs. Landers was badly bruised and fainted immediately following the accident. Her husband landed on his head and was unconscious for some time. It was necessary to summon medical aid for the unfortunate victims

SERVICES ON SUNDAY THE LAST

Union Meeting to be Held at the Washington Avenue Church

REV. RICHARDS TO TALK

The last of the series of union church services during August will be held tomorrow evening in the Washingto Avenue Presbyterian church, when Rev. F. A. Richards, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal church will preach.

Rev. Richards has announced as his sermon topic, "The Parable of the Good Samaritan in a New Light." Other ministers will assist in the services. Special music will be rendered by the choir.

Preceeding the union service, which will be held at 8 o'clock, a union Christian Endeavor meeting will be held at the Washington avenue Presbyterian church. Mrs. R. J. Whitehead will be the leader. She will be assisted by members from other churches.

The union services which have been held at the several churches during the month of August have been well attended. The plan was inaugurated last year and met with so much success that it was decided to again try it this season. It has succeeded so nicely this year that it will probably become an annual custom.

COSTLY IMPROVEMENTS COMPLETED AT THE CALIFORNIA STATE NORMAL

School to Start at California on Next Monday---Anticipating Large Enrollment and a Successful Year

LARGE CORPS OF TEACHERS READY FOR WORK

Improvements have just been completed at the Southwestern State Normal school at an expenditure of approximately $4,000. All of these improvements have been accomplished without the institution incurring debt.

School will open one week earlier than usual, on Monday, August 31, and the extra week will be accounted for during the holidays when there will be a vacation of three instead of two weeks. It is expected that a record-breaking attendance will be registered this season. Seventy-five more boarding students have engaged rooms than at the opening of last term.

Special emphasis will be placed on penmanship this year. Miss Amy Applegate, of Covington, Ky., will be in charge. Principal W. S. Hertzog has secured a strong and efficient corps of teachers. The change from last year's list is slight. Prof. Bert DeBoer, of Ipsilanti, Mich., will have charge of the commercial department. Miss Ada Trippitt, of Morgantown, will teach history and English. Miss Saran Bauman will teach German. She will not be on hand for the opening of school from the fact that she has been unable to get away from Germany, where she has been studying. It is thought she will be able to reach this country by the middle of September.

Miss A. Berdini McIntosh will occupy the chair of Latin. Miss Mazie Walronn, who was assistant teacher in instrumental music will instruct in both French and music. Coach A. J. Sharadin, of the University of Pennsylvania, will take charge of the athletics of the school this season. He had charge of this department last term.

An enjoyable evening was spent by the ladies with games, Mrs. A. C. Anderson winning honors as the best drawer and Mrs. S. L. Woodward for the best poetry.

Little Miss Margaret Kole favored the ladies with several well rendered selections on the piano. At the close of the evening a lunch was served.

POSTPONEMENT OF GAME NECESSARY ON LOCAL GROUND

There will be no baseball game here today. Charleroi and Roscoe were scheduled to play here, but owing to wet grounds the game was cancelled this morning. Fayette City is scheduled to play at Monessen and Dunlevy at Belle Vernon, but these games will probably be called off on account of the rain.

LOOP LINE PROJECT TO BECOME A REALITY

Monessen Business Men Get Franchise For Hill Trolley System

WORKING UP SENTIMENT

Cooperative Method to be Followed in Development ---Board of Trade Busy

That Monessen business men mean business in their proposal to build a loop electric railways line over the Monessen hill was evidenced this week when the project was given tangible form. The Monessen council on Monday night granted a franchise to the Hilltop Street Railways line, which is to be the name of the new company. Since the adoption of the franchise ordinance those most vitally interested have been working up sentiment. It is proposed to make the scheme a co-operative one, stock to be sold generally to Monessen citizens.

The members of the committee from the Monessen Board of Trade who received the franchise were G. F. Wright, Eli H. Wolf, Jake Meyers, A. N. Hood, E. C. Sattley, W. P. Kirk, H. W. Day and J. K. Boyd.

The loop line project was first taken up by the Monessen Board of Trade over a year ago. A committee was appointed at that time to take up work relative to the securing of the franchise.

The idea is to have an electric railways line over Monessen hill to accomodate travelers to the downtown section. It is declared to be the intention of the boosters to carry the project through to completion within a short time.

Working on The Ballots

State Department at Harrisburg Mapping Out Details of Big Sheet

Preliminary forms for the official ballot for the November election have been received in the state department at Harrisburg, and while it will mean weeks until the corrections are made the general lay-out is being studied. Chief Clerk George D. Thorn, who has had charge ofsuch matters for years, is in charge and has arranged eight party squares in this order: Democratic, Washington, Republican, Socialist, Bull Moose, Roosevelt, Progressive, Prohibition and Keystone, these being the parties entitled to squares, although not all of them have complete tickets.

PLANTS ARE NOW RUNNING

Two New Factories Located Out Lincoln Avenue Extension

ADDITION IS PLANNED

The Keystone Cut Glass company has moved its plant from McKean avenue to the new quarters in the three-story tile block building on Maple Creek just above the Twilight road, and the Charleroi Decorating company, which is a new concern, has begun operations in it's new building adjoining the Keystone Cut Glass company's plant on Maple Creek.

M. S. Meds is manager of the Keystone Cut Glass company's plant. The plant when in full operation will employ about 40 men. The building is not as yet completed and a full force is not working. William Deiter, formerly with the Royal Decorating company of Pittsburg, is manager of the Charleroi Decorating company's plant.

The Keystone Cut Glass company makes a specialty of small cut glass articles such as cream and sugar sets, tumblers, shades for lights and other small articles. The Charleroi Decorating company puts out a line of hand decorated shades and globes and expects in the near future to put out some decorated vases.

About 40 girls will be employed by this plant when it is running to full capacity. The decorating is done by the girls with paints, oils and other decorating substances, used for decorating glass, then the glass ware is burned in an oven which finishes it.

A large one-story storage building will be erected between the two plants in the near future. The building will be used by both companies. Additional buildings will probably be erected within a year. The present buildings are well lighted and well ventilated and the employes are declared to be working under splendid conditions.

INTERNAL REVENUE STAMPS FOUND AND SENSATION RESULTS

Much mystery surrounds the finding of a package of government revenue stamps on the Monongahela bridge, Wednesday, August 19, by Donald Summerville, of Monongahela. The news of the find has just been learned. The stamps had been assigned to the Globe Brewery, in Pittsburg. They were placed in a mail sack in Pittsburg with other mail but no other mail was found in the vicinity of the bridge. The post office authorities are working on the case.

COMMON SENSE

There is no shifting of responsibility or evasions of issues on the part of the Republican candidates. They come out flat in their pronouncement of principles relevant to the continued protection of the masses and development of the nation's resources and industries. The platform is composed of solid, substantial planks that make it one of the best and truest platforms ever offered.

The Republican policy, tried and true, is unlike any other policy. The Democratic policy, as it is commonly understood, nationally leads to the complete abandonment of a protective tariff and to government by experimental legislation that, classified, leans to the radical and extreme. The Democratic state platform is patterned after and based upon the party's national platform, which reveals the utter hopelessness of attaining any betterment from their promises. Business conditions are undeniably poor, and hasbeen during a Democratic administration that they have become so.

Plainly experimental legislation has keenly affected the country's trade and things are "growing no better fast."

From the so-called Progressives we have a lot of promises that sound nice and nothing more. No record of achievements have they to offer to warrant the least bit of faith in their power. The party is a Roosevelt party pure and simple. The Colonel is a shrewd genius—admittedly that—and a foresighted person whose insatiable craving for honors will lead him to almost any extreme. Presently we shall behold the Colonel climbing back on to the Republican band wagon, if he can find room, and then will come demands. Roosevelt is the head and hoofs of the Progressive party, so it appear that not only is the Progressive party a party of mere promises but a party with no mission to perform save that pertaining to the advancement of the "big stick" chief. Foresighted voters who were led to desert the party which had befriended them are now beginning to realize that fact and are hastily getting back into the folds.

In this fall's campaign on the one side of the triangle we shall have a party that stands for advancement by a tried policy based on common sense. On another side we shall have a party full of experimental philosophy and truly remarkable visions but with a record of failure instead of achievement. On the third side we shall have a party with a lot of glittering promises. Of the three there is but one choice, the first.

EXPORTS RESUMING

Advices from Atlantic ports show that the resumption of exports of foodstuffs is going on rapidly, says the Pittsburg Dispatch. Last week the total exports of grain were 6,000,000 bushels. In four days of the present week shipments were more than four times what they were in four days of the previous week. With the urgent demand for wheat from England and France—and from Germany if shipments could be made— it is clear that the movement will be fully up to the capacity of the steamers available.

One report early in the week placed the engagements at New York for the first two days at 1,750,000 bushels; 700,000 were taken for the Mediterranean and 400,000 for France. Important bids were reported from Norway, Sweden and Denmark. The presence of the European demand has held prices up, and the resumption of navigation has sent them further, the market closing with a slight reaction.

FAMOUS OLD ENGLISH TAVERN

Jack Straw's Castle on Hampstead Heath Has Many Attractions for the Visitor.

Jack Straw's castle on Hampstead heath, which is mourning the death of its landlord, is one of those rather numerous inns whose claims to honor rest more on legend than on solid fact. It is true that every Dickensian goes there at least once in his life and there is solid warrant for the pilgrimage on the authority of John Forster.

In 1837 Dickens wrote to him proposing a winter tramp over the heath, with the added attraction of "I know a good 'ous there where we can have a red hot chop for dinner and a glass of good wine." Forster adds that this was the first of many happy meetings at Jack Straw's castle. But the story that Dickens often stayed there has not the same authority.

The other Jack Straw legend is that the peasant leader built a fort there, of which it can only be said that the house is apparently built on an ancient earthwork, whoever was its architect. The first reference to the castle is in a mention of a horse race on the heath in 1748, but it has a corner in "Clarissa Harlowe."—Manchester Guardian.

Shrewd Butcher.

A certain English butcher, who sold about 30 cooked legs of pork per week, said his loss was formerly 40 per cent and now only 22 per cent in the electric oven, or a clear saving of 18 per cent. After deducting the cost of the current at two cents per unit, his saving amounted to 50 cents per leg of pork, or $15 per week extra profit. On being told that he had only saved water, he answered: "Perhaps so; but, you see, my customers pay me 2s cents per pound for it!"—Popular Electricity.

WILLED HOUSE TO WIDOWS

Good Reason Why Gaston de Jansac's Paris Property Is Always Occupied.

For five centuries eight widows have lived at a certain number in the Rue Saint-Louis-en-l'Isle, Saint-Germain-des-Près, Paris, writes a correspondent of the New York Sun. Not a single widow [illegible] of the Hôtel-Dieu, Right Reverend Monsignor Amadeus [illegible] Bishop of Amadia [illegible] Count de Jansac [illegible] Why he [illegible] the [illegible] should be owned by widows of the Rue Saint-Louis—it was known by another name then—sent on his eight angels of mercy, and installed them there for life.

Then De Jansac set aside a trust fund and drew up a legal instrument stipulating that always eight widows should live there. That was in 1623. The original building was torn down long ago and its successor in turn gave way to another and that one to a third, but each house occupying the original site has been the home of eight widows who, otherwise, might have been public charges.

It has been proposed at times to transfer the women to a public institution, but the authorities have seen to it that De Jansac's stipulations have been followed to the letter.

RABBITS TRAINED TO WORK

Animals Eat Weeds, but Never Touch Cultivated Plants, Declares Their Owner.

No longer need farmers rack their backs and get stooping shoulders by hoeing out weeds, according to a statement made by James R. Reed of Trumansburg, N. Y.

By careful breeding and systematic training, Mr. Reed, so he claims, has produced rabbits which will go into a garden patch and devour all the weeds, but not touch a single cultivated plant.

During the last two years a special plot of ground has been devoted to the training of rabbits. They were kept without food for several days, and then released in the plot, which had been prepared by putting on the cultivated plants a chemical which would make the animals ill. After repeated trials the rabbits seemed to understand that they might only eat weeds with impunity, says Mr. Reed. Now, when his garden becomes cluttered with weeds, he says he starves his rabbits for several days, and then lets them into the garden, where they effectively do the work that formerly required hoeing.

America's Scientific Failure.

"I believe for any nation that has any hope of perpetual existence that the scholars are the most essential of any class of society. And may we postulate, for the sake of the argument, that God will not provide and take care of the scholars? And what is the predicament of scholarship in America? Simply this: that the institutions that have attempted to foster scholarship have not lived up to their opportunities. . . . America has not led in thought since the days of Franklin. America follows thought. Consider some of the recent achievements in physical science; X-rays and their nature, Hertzian waves, liquid air, liquid helium, cathode rays, positive rays, radium and radioactive bodies, etc. . . . These and practically every recently proposed fundamental principle and important discovery in modern physics have come from abroad."—New York Evening Post.

Soil Gives Freedom.

For the man who tills his little glebe there is the unending satisfaction of accomplishment. In his own garden he is a free being, independent of kings and of corporations. He is God's co-partner in making the earth to bring forth fruit. And when old age comes and he is compelled to retire from the activities of a lifetime, to leave his place in the ranks to be filled by a younger man, he is not one of those restless old misanthropes, shambling uselessly through his latter years. He has a worthy occupation for his old hands until his body is laid under the flowers that he loved.—The Craftsman.

Old Tower to Be Destroyed.

Just outside the Syrian port of Tripoli, lying alongside the railway track, is a famous old fort known as the Tower of the Lions, from the tradition that it was built by Richard the Lion-Hearted of England. As a matter of fact, it is one of six such forts built by the Crusaders to protect the coast, only one other of which exists and which is in a poor condition. Now the Tower of Lions is to be demolished, to make room for the railway, much to the discomfiture of archaeologists, who would like to see this old tower preserved as a relic of antiquity.

Nursing the Electors.

The vigorous speeches of M. Jean Richepin, the poet, as a candidate in the elections for the French chamber are attracting considerable attention.

"You are not worthy of the name of citizens!" he tells the electors. "You are merely brutes. You are only dogs! You are all cowards!"

He follows this up by addressing his possible future constituents, through the Press, as "wretches, mercenaries, jackals, savages, howling wild beasts!"

GAVE UP RICHES FOR LOVE

German Prince Sacrificed Career and Estates for the Sake of the Woman He Loved.

It was with a proud spirit of self-[illegible] that Prince Eberwyn von Detmold-Stuttart, cousin of the queen of Holland, gave his hand a short time ago to the London registry clerk to [illegible] Lady [illegible], daughter of a tradesman who had begun life as a [illegible]. The [illegible] step for a man [illegible] had to turn [illegible] to [illegible] for the [illegible] and [illegible] of his family, and formally resigned his seigniory to Count [illegible], a [illegible] to his younger brother, Prince Victor. And when he had thus [illegible] himself to poverty and obscurity, he declared, "I need not say that I am more than happy. As long as I live, I shall rejoice that I had the firmness to place my happiness and that of my bride above the mediaeval prejudices of my house."

When Prince Eberwyn was thus gladly sacrificing rank and riches for love, Count Hans von Hochberg, heir to the Duchy of Rohnstock, was standing at an altar in New York state with Fraulein Louise Carow, a German shop girl, for whose sake he had abandoned his claim to the family estate and dignities. "I am going to earn my living as a chauffeur," this young hero of romance said; "and I know that I shall be happier sharing a poor home with the woman I love than if I were Duke of Rohnstock with $500,000 a year but without her."

Such romances of today could be multiplied almost indefinitely—from the love adventures of the Archduke Leopold of Austria to the nephew of the emperor, who was content to be a royal outcast for the sake of Fraulein Ritter, farmer's daughter and domestic servant, to the Prince de Broglie, who not long ago was conducting an orchestra in a New York theater, while the wife for whom he had sacrificed everything but happiness—the greatest thing of all—was singing on the stage.

Court Doctor to Pharaoh.

Surgery is necessarily one of the most ancient of the sciences. Archeologists have for instance just discovered records of a surgeon who lived during the fifth Egyptian dynasty, and must have been court doctor to the Pharoah Sahura, some 4,000 years before Christ. The first surgical implements of which anything is known are splints found in the Nubian desert. In one place a graveyard was found, and here were remains of bodies with fractured limbs that had been set with bark splints. One was a right thigh-bone that had been broken, and was still held in position by a workmanlike splint and bandages. All the knots were true reef-knots, and the wrapping showed how the strips of palm-fiber cloth were set just as a good surgeon would set them nowadays, so as to use the full strength of the fabric. In other cases bodies were found with compound fractures, where the broken ends of the bone had broken through the skin.

Hello Nation.

Hello! We are the greatest telephone users in the world. The daily average of talks over the telephones last year was over 26,000,000. There are 70,000 places, towns, cities and hamlets from which telephone messages may be sent. This is 5,000 more than the number of our post offices, 10,000 more than the number of our railroad stations and three times the number of telegraph offices in the country. There are nearly 7,500,000 telephone stations in the Bell system—an increase last year of over 800,000. These are the facts reported by the American Telegraph & Telephone company in reference to the Bell business. It earned last year nearly $43,000,000. Will it be believed that the majority of its shares are owned by women and less than seven per cent by brokers?—Leslie's.

Cushion Stuffed With Love-Locks.

Among her personal friends, Miss Loie Fuller, the famous dancer, numbers Camille Flammarion, the great French astronomer. "I shall never forget," she says, in "Fifteen Years of a Dancer's Life," the impression that Camille Flammarion made upon me the first time the Countess Wolska took me to his house, Rue Cassini. He wore a lounge jacket of white flannel, edged with red lace. He had a veritable forest of hair, which formed, as it were, a bonnet around his head. This was so remarkable that I could not repress an exclamation. Mme. Flammarion then told me that she frequently had to cut some of the locks, for her husband's hair grew with such vigor that was tormented by it. Then she showed me a cushion on a divan, and remarked: 'There is where I put his hair after cutting it.'

"To give an accurate idea of Camille Flammarion's style of wearing his hair, you have only to multiply Paderewski's head of hair by twelve."

As to Drowsiness in Church.

The discovery has been made by a western art professor that drowsiness in church is due not so much to the sermon as to a clashing color scheme in church decoration. "How can a person listen to an address when the decorations of the church are inharmonious? When the curtains are pink, the cushions red and the decorations are yellow and blue the emotions of the audience are affected and they become drowsy." Yet a pale pastel hue in the pulpit doubtless has a somnolent effect on the congregation.

AFTER PASSING YEARS

Charleroi Testimony Remains Unshaken

Time is the best test of truth. Here is a Charleroi story that has stood the test of time. It is a story with a point which will come straight home to many of us.

Mrs. George Ewing, 913 Shady avenue, Charleroi, Pa., says: "One of the family and attacks of kidney disease for years. He often complained of his back aching and he was so bad at times that he had to lay off from work. The kidney secretions were irregular in passage and caused him much annoyance. Mornings he got up feeling lame and stiff. He was advised to try Doan's Kidney Pills and he got a box at Piper's Pharmacy. After taking the remedy a short time he was benefited and several boxes did him a world of good."

A Later Statement.

On January 26, 1914, Mrs. Ewing said: "We still hold as high an opinion of Doan's Kidney Pills as when we gave a public statement praising them some time ago. We always have a box of this remedy in the house and recommend it whenever we can."

Mr. Farmer, Do You Carry a Check Book?

The number of farmers who do is steadily increasing.

We never knew one to give up the practice after he had demonstrated its convenience.

Now, for instance, Mr. A and Mr. B, neighboring farmers have a deal, and in settling up, cannot make change. They must necessarily wait until one makes a trip to town, or they may find a neighbor who can help them out, all of which takes time. With a check book one may write the exact amount—not a cent more or less—and the deal is closed.

Of course we supply our customers with check books.

PATRONS OF "MANLY ART"

Five Monarchs of Great Britain Noted for Their Admiration of the Fistic Game.

When King George V recently attended a public exhibition of boxing at the barracks of the Second Life Guards, and applauded the exhibition of the "manly art" furnished by Bombardier Wells and Pat O'Keefe, as well as the bouts between soldier pugilists, he did not establish a royal precedent. Every one of the five Georges who have ruled Great Britain has been a patron of boxing and enthusiastic in his admiration of the sport. George II, who ascended the throne just two centuries ago this year, was the first royal boxer. The modern fistic game had its beginning during his reign, when James Figg of Thame, Oxfordshire, became the first champion of England. George I, until his death, did everything in his power to promote the boxing game. When his son, George II, came to the throne in 1728 he gave royal encouragement to the sport and took private lessons from Broughton. The latter is said to have invented the first "gloves" (called "mufflers"), in order to prevent the possibility of damage to the royal countenance. George III was even more enthusiastic in his admiration of boxing than his predecessors. He boxed well, and, a century ago, he gave a boxing show to celebrate the triumph over Napoleon, the spectators including the rulers of Russia and Prussia. An ex-champion, Jem Belcher, was asked to form a coronation guard of honor, composed of boxers, when George IV (a brilliant boxer) was crowned in 1820. William IV was not interested in boxing, and Queen Victoria is said to have sought to stamp it out. Under George V it is apparent that boxing is to be again in royal favor. The king long ago learned how to box.

'UNCLE JOE' RADIATES HUMOR

Former Speaker Illustrates Small "Kick" by Relating Really Good Little Story.

"Well, boys, I'm on my way to Bermuda to boil out," said Uncle Joe Cannon to a group of New York reporters. "I hope you'll have cheaper taxicab fares when I get back."

"Do you think our taxicab rates are high, sir?" asked a young lady reporter.

Uncle Joe, chewing the end of his cigar, smiled grimly.

"Did you never hear of the New York house-breaker?" he said. "Well, a house-breaker rose up from behind a hat rack in a New York house as the owner entered late one night.

"'Throw up your hands!' he said.

"The owner did so."

"'Gimme all yer money.'

"'But,' said the owner, 'I've just come home in a taxicab.'

"The house-breaker's ferocious manner changed. He looked at his victim kindly. Then, putting his hand in his pocket, he said:

"'Here, my poor fellow, is a quarter fur ye. So long!'"

New York's First Steam Ferryboats.

One hundred years ago the first steam ferryboat between New York and Brooklyn, named the Nassau, began running. Two years previously the first steam ferry between New York and New Jersey was established. For many years, until the opening of the Brooklyn bridge in 1883, the ferryboats afforded the only method of regular transportation between the two populous cities separated by the East river. In the course of time the service expanded until hundreds of the steam ferryboats were plying between Manhattan and various points on the Long Island and New Jersey shores and the islands in the bay and the East river. With the completion of new bridges and the opening of the tunnels under the East and North rivers the ferry traffic has diminished and doubtless in time will become extinct.

Very Easy.

The late Charles H. Cramp, the Philadelphia shipbuilder, had little sympathy with Socialism, and he used to tell this story:

"I had a Socialist draughtsman in my shipyard," so he would begin. "The draughtsman said to me one day:

"'The world's all wrong, Mr. Cramp. If I had my way I'd make a new law compelling the rich to divide up everything with the poor and then we'd all start equal. Wouldn't that be grand, eh?'

"'Grand? No!' said I. 'In ten years after that equal start there'd be the same inequality there is now.'

"'Then,' said the draughtsman, cheerily—'then we'd divide up again. Divide up every ten years. It's as easy as rollin' off a log, ain't it?'"

Peruvian Antiquities.

A remarkable collection of Peruvian antiquities, dating back, so archeologists believe, at least 3,000 years, has just been received by the American Museum of Natural History. In the collection are about 700 specimens of Nazca pottery and rare examples of textiles, feather work, and primitive slings decorated with quaint designs. It is by far the largest collection acquired by any museum in this country. Soon after the museum's collection was forwarded to New York the Peruvian government passed a law prohibiting the shipment of specimens of art to foreign countries. This early Peruvian art is so rare that a museum in Berlin has only four specimens of Nazca pottery.

BIBLE WILL BE READ AGAIN

Utilitarian Age for the Present Militates Against It, but It Is Sure to Return.

A correspondent complains of a poet who wrote of "Bathsheba," when he had the "Queen of Sheba" in mind, and cries: "I wish there were some power to compel people to read their Bible."

Many persons will echo this wish, for various reasons. The orthodox, because they believe that the better of the Old Testament writings necessary for salvation. The great company of [illegible] because many of them recognize the vast influence for intelligence, knowledge and culture which comes from a familiarity with the language of the King James version of the Scriptures. It would be easy to lengthen the list of those who "wish people could be compelled to read the Bible."

Granting all the happy exceptions which seem to prove the rule, the idea is pretty much a vain hope at the moment. It is not improbable that after the present generation of virtual illiterates in this country shall have grown old in their lives of striving to standardize mankind for utilitarian purposes the pendulum will swing back again toward the cultivation of intellectual pursuits, and in any such frame of public opinion consistent reading of and listening to the Bible from childhood to maturity will be sure to reappear. And then a generation will grow up again whose ears will always be filled with the resonance of those reverberating syllables of Scripture which have subconsciously influenced and guided the thought and speech and writing of the more influential among the leaders of opinion during the last century.—New York Sun.

THEIR MINDS IN A GROOVE

People Who Are Stationary in Their Thoughts and Opinions and Cannot See the World Move.

As often as anything is said to my neighbor, Wilcox, about the suffering brought by the extreme weather to the tenement districts, his remark is, "Yes, but they don't mind it as you or I would." This response is as prompt to act as the flare of a safety match, and something more certain. What is more, he has been repeating it for 20 years and he will—in common with some thousands of his brethren who conceive it the whole duty of man to vote the straight ticket and send their sons to college—go on repeating it for 20 more, if he lives.

Switchboard minds. Press a given button and get a given buzz. They would keenly resent the suggestion that they are doing business with the same office furniture that their fathers used. They would just as keenly resent the suggestion that they are not doing business with the same mental furniture that their grandfathers used. They do so in print, and they do so across their own dinner tables. Now, it is inconceivable that they should do this on purpose. Nobody except a reformer (he asks nothing better) makes a spectacle of himself voluntarily. I suspect, therefore that the reason lies deeper; that it is a bread-and-butter reason to be searched out of patrons, clienteles, customers, and pay envelopes, and that honestly lovable folks who go on rehearsing such stupefying inanities as that "luxuries give employment to the working classs" do this not so much because people repeat themselves as because types do.—Atlantic Magazine.

Getting Rid of Bot Flies.

The United States department of agriculture has recently thoroughly tested a very unusual cure for the disease of horses called bots. Bots are the larvae of the horse bot fly, and live in the stomachs of the horses. They interfere with digestive processes to such an extent as to cause loss of flesh, generally poor condition, and often death. Dislodging them is extremely difficult.

In the treatment tested the horse was fed a little hay and oats in the morning, and allowed to go without food the rest of the day. In the evening a purgative was given. Next morning the horse was given three drams of carbon bisulphid in a gelatin capsule three times at intervals of an hour. When the capsule reached the horse's stomach it dissolved; and the carbon bisulphid, a liquid that is extremely volatile at the temperature of a horse's body, evaporated rapidly. The gas suffocated the bots and other parasites in the horse's stomach without injuring the horse in the least. The remedy was tried with complete success on a large number of affected animals.

Where Class Didn't Count.

A young woman from abroad was starting her conquest of the country by entering domestic service with a haughty East end family. She had an afternoon off and put on her finest finery and paraded down the street with another domestic. As they were walking along, talking of this and that, comparing experiences and notes and other such things, the companion said:

"Look, Norah! There's the woman you work for on the other side of the street!"

"Heavens, Maggie! I hope she don't see me!"

"Why? Are you afraid av yer boss?"

"No, ye fool. But it would be just like her to see this hat an' go an' get one just like it!"

Reflection From Northern Lights.

Between ten and eleven o'clock Thursday night a reflection from the aurora borealis, or Delavan's Comet was plainly visible in the Bentleyville section. At different times the lights appeared in various parts of the heavens. Three different positions were recorded. At first it was plainly visible in the west. Then its position shifted from the west to an eastern direction. The last glimpse of the reflection was almost directly north. Some of the more superstitious and imaginative citizens declared the reflection was nothing more than an omen symbolical of the present conflict in Europe.

Another Ghost Laid.

John McGuire, a person who does not believe in spectres or anything like spectres, was lying in bed waiting to be devoured by sleep, when, in turning over, he happened to open his eyes. Behold! something that almost scared him to death. He could hardly move with fright. He watched it for a few seconds. According to his story it was a ghost, that raised its hand every little while and pointed toward him. Plucking up nerve, he got out of bed and made for Friend Spectre. It raised its arm and pointed at him again. He shrank back; but when he made another move in its direction, the arm went up again. McGuire made a lunge and grabbed it.

It was his shirt. He had placed it on the back of a chair close to a window, and the wind did the rest.

Costly Ancestors.

Two close-fisted Missouri brothers sued a neighbor for $375 owing on a land deal. They engaged the best lawyer in their county seat. The lawyer won the case. The brothers called to see about his fee. One stayed outside and the other went in. "How much is it?" he asked.

"Well," said the lawyer, "I won't be hard on you. I have known both you boys since you were children and I knew your pap. I guess $50 will be about right."

The inquiring brother went out dazed. "Lordly, George," he said to the one outside. "I'm durn glad he didn't know grandpap, too."

Old Memories.

Representative Simeon D. Fess of Ohio met an old friend in Washington the other day and they fell to discussing the ravages of time, especially in regard to loss of hair.

"Yes, I have a great prejudice against being bald," remarked Fess friend, "but I guess I'm elected."

"Well, you know the old story about the big fly and the little fly," said Fess. "The big fly and the little fly were promenading across an expansive bald head, and the big fly remarked to the little fly: 'See this fine, wide boulevard here? I can remember when it was nothing but a narrow cowpath.'"

CLOTHES SAVED HIS LIFE

Man, "Innocent Bystander" in Street Duel, So Dressed Up That Bullet Can't Kill Him.

Two young men met on Sixteenth street and Ninth avenue, New York, and engaged in a heated argument. Persons who passed heard them mention the name of a girl.

The employes of the National Biscuit company, of whom there are close to 1,000—a majority girls—came from the big plant half a block away. The men began to fight with their fists. Then they took positions on each side of the street, drew revolvers, and began to shoot. After each had emptied his pistol they ran in different directions and escaped.

As they fled an elderly man threw up his hands and fell. Policemen came and found he had been shot in the left breast. In the hospital he described himself as Philip Moretti, sixty-three, of 244 Thompson street. He wore an overcoat, an undercoat, two waistcoats, a shirt, and two suits of underwear. The bullet had not been able to do him much harm after going through such a mass of clothing.

Early Aids for Colds.

An ordinary cold can often be checked in the first stages by inducing a good perspiration, says Sister Jennings Goodley in "Common Sense Aids in Illness." A glass of very hot milk drunk after you are in bed, or the juice of a lemon added to a tumbler of boiling water, will often accomplish this. A hot bath to which a little ammonia has been added is another method.

A teaspooniful of ammoniated tincture of quinine taken three times a day helps to throw off a cold. A cough caused by a tickling throat can generally be stopped by drinking a teaspoonful of glycerin added to a wineglassful of water.

The fumes of burnt camphor inhaled will dry up a running cold, i. e., place a piece of camphor in a saucer, set fire to it; after a minute or two breathe the fumes.

OUT OF TOUCH WITH TIMES

Ideas Calmly Put Forth by Prominent Men Sound Much Like the Ravings of Idiocy.

"No young man should marry until he has $100,000 in the bank," is the dictum of a venerable money changer who has spent his life (and the lives of some hundreds of others) in the accumulation of several times that sum. He considers the figure a modest one for a starter. The same gentleman has also been heard to remark, during a discussion of the smoke nuisance, that people who object to smoke should live at Tarrytown or in Montclair.

A chief of police is putting himself on record as opposed to "violence:"

"I stand for law and order. If I had the authority I would shoot down these strikers like dogs."

And a brother of his craft thus expounds his theory of the administration of justice:

"I don't care whether you can hold these people morally responsible or not. I don't care whether they are actually guilty or not. It is necessary to make an example of some one: and you must punish the man you can get hold of."—Seymour Deming, in the Atlantic.

Magnetized Mouse.

A curious magic wand has been developed in France. It is worked by the action of a concealed magnet, so that a mouse or other small animal appears to run up and down the wand in a mysterious way. The wand is a square tube of light wood covered with silk, and the animal is of celluloid and has a small piece of iron on the bottom. Inside the rod is a small lead weight on an endless cord, and when the wand is turned up the weight falls gradually and draws along a small magnet, also fixed on the cord and just below the surface. When the rod is turned the rat climbs up.

BOON TO THE SMALL BOY

Stepless Cars in New York Enable Him to Procure Numerous Free Rides.

No matter what else can be said in regard to the new stepless cars now in operation on Broadway, they are certainly a boon to the small boy who depends on riding free, says the New York Times.

The advent of the pay-as-you-enter car and the success of the idea of placing a tin guard over the rear bumper, thus frustrating the efforts of those bent on obtaining free rides by sitting on the bumper, have done much to obviate all chances of riding on surface cars without paying the necessary nickel. The small boy, as usual, suffered most from those inventions.

It goes without saying that it was not an intentional act on the part of the company providing means for the small boy to ride free.

The boy waits for a crowded car at a corner where he notices some one else waiting. When that person crowds into the car the boy follows, unknown to the conductor. The boy makes sure to hide himself behind the form of an adult. The conductor on his eyrie fails to notice the boy, and after the car has run on for a number of blocks the conductor cannot be positive the boy failed to deposit his nickel in the box.

AIR AFFECTED BY SOUND

Ventilation and Acoustics of Public Places Seem General Matter of Controversy.

The effect of ventilation on the acoustics of public halls has been a subject of investigation. Architects have found that currents or layers of air of different density interfere seriously with the passage of sound, but that a mass of moving air—if homogeneous—may have little influence. Heaters in front of the stage give especial trouble.

A book by C. Garnier mentions a new Paris theater in which air is admitted near the footlights, forming a kind of curtain between actors and spectators, and much interference results, the sound from the stage being weak, while that from the orchestra is intense.

In another theater with ventilation by heated air passed across the stage into the auditorium there was improvement in the acoustic qualities when the ventilating apparatus was working.

Another inquirer concludes that ventilation can have only slight influence in improving acoustics, that parallel layers of air may be particularly harmful, and that a single column of uniformly heated ascending air will affect sound very slightly.

By the Professor.

Professor Jones and Mrs. Jones were both of the type colloquially known as strawberry blonds. In accordance with the immemorial custom of professors' families on small salaries at this particular southern college, the Jones family grew apace. Mary, the first, was born, and her hair came perilously near to being cerise. The twins lost to Mary in respect of red hair by just a shade. Johnny, the next, bade fair at three months to make Mary seem a neutral color. Now, Mrs. Jones longed for just one black-haired one. When the learned professor of ology from the scientific department dropped in for supper, Mrs. Jones almost tearfully propounded to him a question.

"O, doctor," she asked, "do you think it must always be hereditary?"

The doctor looked from the aureoles of Professor and Mrs. Jones to the successive four alarms of fire-red hair on the little Joneses.

"Not so much that," he assured her at last, "as redheditary."

Putting Them "In Right."

A Canadian who had been on a pleasure jaunt to New York tells of an incident of Gotham's amusement life. He went to the Carnegie lyceum. It's a big place with several different entertainments going on at the same time in various parts of the building. On this particular day they had moving pictures of Victor Hugo's "Les Miserables" on the ground floor and an orchestra concert upstairs. Highbrow music-lovers and patrons of the movies would have got all mixed up in looking for their respective places of entertainment if it had not been for a big-voiced negro porter who stood at the stairs to announce in stentorian tones: "Dis way to de Symphony concert. Less Miserubble downstairs."

Hook and Eye.

The scene was a teachers' training college; the class one of girls; the lecturer on phonetics a gentleman with a nice taste in sarcasm. "This sound," he said, "has for symbol something even you can all remember—a dressmaker's hook; just the ordinary thing you are all familiar with." As he spoke, says the Manchester Guardian, he drew the symbol in chalk on the board, and the worried pupils all laughed. Even they—to borrow the professor's remark—knew that the "hook" depicted was an "eye."

Ozone Stimulates Yeast.

A new application of ozone has just been put into use by brewers. They have discovered that the fermenting power of yeast is greatly increased by subjecting it to the influence of ozone for five minutes. The power develops only after about two days. Ozone has an inhibitive action upon objectionable organisms.
